EXECUTIVE

FUNCTIONING

Program

Individual Coaching or Small Groups

WHAT?

This program is specifically tailored to students with ADHD, learning disorders, or challenges related to executive functioning. It is designed to enhance their ability to manage and organize daily activities and responsibilities. Students will identify their personal strengths and areas for improvement, and then develop strategies to enhance organization, time management, prioritization, and focus. The sessions will also cover essential skills such as note-taking, study techniques, and test-taking strategies.

WHY?

Schools often fall short in teaching executive functioning skills, which leaves many bright students struggling with school despite their potential. Our program directly addresses these critical skills and equips these students with the tools they need to succeed.

WHERE?

The program will be offered online or in-person at our Acorn Psychology office located at:

Suite 120, 4954 Richard Road SW,
Calgary, AB T2J 0N3

WHEN?

The program consists of 6 sessions, with meetings once a week taking place after school or in the early evenings.

Groups run continuously during the year and are scheduled once enough students of a similar age have registered.
